

20 Why does the pressure of a gas increase when the gas is compressed at constant temperature?

- A The gas molecules collide more often with each other.
- B The gas molecules expand under pressure.
- C The gas molecules hit the walls of the container more frequently.
- D The gas molecules travel faster.