

3 Which statement about errors in measurements is correct?

- A An accurate set of measurements always has a small random error.
- B A precise set of measurements always has a small systematic error.
- C A random error can be reduced by taking an average of several measurements.
- D A systematic error creates a random set of measurements spread out about the true value.